Ring Power Corp. has acquired a metal products manufacturer that was a former supplier. Ring Power acquired all substantial assets of Envirovault LLC, which operated under the name Phoenix Products.

"Envirovault is a trade name, but Phoenix Products is the business name they did business under," said Sue Miller, vice president of marketing for Ring Power, which is based in Jacksonville.

Phoenix supplied generator set enclosures and fuel storage tanks, among other things, to Ring Power. The company also sold to customers across the country.

"They deal with Cat dealers out in California and all over the country," Miller said.

Miller said Ring Power accounted for close to half of Phoenix Products' business. Phoenix employs 26 people, but that number will be boosted in an attempt to increase production. Pete Slater will continue to serve as Phoenix Products sales and operations manager.
